The solution to be tested is then introduced, either wholly or in aliquot part, which may be determined by weighing or measuring. In the former case we use a side-neck test tube of about 30 c.c. capacity, and weigh to the second decimal place. After introduction of the solution the color appears upon the paper in a few minutes and the deposit reaches its maximum within thirty minutes. The band of color thus obtained is then compared with a set of standard bands. From the amount of arsenic as estimated from the comparison, and the amount of solution from which the band was obtained, the calculation of the arsenic in the entire solution is simple. We are also indebted to the Baker and Adamson Company for a preparation of hydrochloric acid containing a still smaller quantity of arsenic, the use of which will be later explained in the discussion of the absolute delicacy of the method.
